

A postcard from PwC...

I studied A Level English at School

How I use English in my work now:

- I am required to review, interpret and advise on contracts.

My highlight of my job so far

- Becoming a social mobility champion
- Closing on my first deal in the international business reorganisations team. I joined in 2019 and was quite overwhelmed, having moved back from practising as a lawyer in Guernsey. I am pleased to say that I was able to transition to the point where I can give advice to multi-national companies wishing to eliminate duplicate entities following a purchase of another company.

If I went back in time what piece of advice would I give my 17 year old self?

Believe in yourself. I went to a state school and went on to study at Cambridge University. If you are interested in law, it is okay and true that you do not need to study law at A-level.

Name: Juliana Atere

Job Title: Corporate Solicitor

Where I work: PwC Embankment Office in the international business reorganisation department

To find out more and apply, go to:
pwc.co.uk/schools

Disclaimer: This content is for general information purposes only, and should not be used as a substitute for consultation with professional advisors. Information available here is not to be relied upon as professional advice or for the rendering of professional services. © 2019 PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP (a UK limited liability partnership). All rights reserved. 'PwC' refers to the UK member firm, and may sometimes refer to the PwC network. Each member firm is a separate legal entity. Please see www.pwc.com/structure for further details.